WHO IS THIS? SEEKING PARENTAGE

Leroy E Knuckles was born 5/1874 in Rock Island Co, Andalusia, IL to unknown parents. He married first Cora Bates 5/23/1900 in Monroe Co, IA.. Son Guy born 12/28/1901 died 2/1982 Yakima, WA. Daughter Clara, no further record after living with her mom Clara in 1920 after Roy and Cora divorced. Roy then married Ella Gallegher before 1925 and then married a Beulah some time before 1930. His date of death his not known. Since he does not know the names of his parents in the 1925 Iowa State Census is doubtful his death certificate will show who they are. He cannot be found in the 1880 Census records. Second wife Ella had a son named Frank King, son of William King.

Iowa State Census records from 1849-1925 are now on line at ancestry.com

Also are Wisconsin and Kansas State Census Records.

They are GREAT sources because beginning 1925 they named the parents, and where the parents were born and the age of the parents if living and where the parents were married.

 There were only five generations of Obediah's descendants represented in the book. Because of this, many of the living descendants were not listed. I am in the process of correcting this problem and will soon let those involved know of the situation and the remedy. My sincere apologies. However, I now realize that sitting down and crying for an hour did not make it any better. (grin)

This book also has included, the First Generation of James, the First generation of William the Patriot, the Blissland Complaint, (and scanned signature), the St Pauls Parish Register, all of the early court records, (wills, deeds, indentures, processionings), the story of the Nuckolls Rose, the Coat of Arms, Vestry Books of Virginia and a chapter for the DAR and Colonial Dames Information. Also, Zenas Knuckles sent me stories told by his dad Colson Knuckles before he died and allowed me to transcribe them for this book. These stories are a treasure. Most of the older folks can well remember times as he describes.

I wish to personally thank all of those who submitted their family information to make this book a success. It was done in the same binding cover as the first book, making it look as a matching set.

Bertha's Book, Book II and the Addendum will be released later this year on CD in searchable PDF format.

For those interested Book II can still be purchased at www.higginsonbooks.com

Superintendent of the Army Depot, Young Men's Christian Association and Ladies' Aid Society, acknowledges the receipt of the following contributions for the month of February, ultimo:
Leighton Nuckolls's daughters, Frederick's Hall, Louisa, 24 pairs socks, for N. W.

September 12, 1862.
Died, at his father's residence, in the county of Louise, on the 4th instant, in his 26th year, John L. Nuckolls, after a short illness, of diphtheria. The subject of this obituary was among the first to volunteer for the defence of his country; was a member of Frederick Hall Grays, company F. 23d Va. regiment; served through the campaign in Northwest Virginia; served under Jackson, and was a participant in nearly every hard fought battle in the Valley of Virginia and was in the battle of Cedar Run. He was brave and true to the end. But what is more, he was a Christian, a consistent member of the Baptist Church from early youth, and so firm was his faith and so deep was his piety and integrity, that all his comrades bear testimony to his immovable faith and steadfastness in the truth. Therefore, we will not grieve as those who have no hope, but rather rejoice that he has gone home to God and to glory. [*] M. P.

The Richmond Daily Dispatch: November 4, 1861
A very serious accident occurred this morning, resulting in the mortal wounding of Private James Nuckols, of Company E, (Goochland Grays,) 23d regiment. During an inspection of arms, a musket in the hands of a member of another company, accidentally exploded, and a ball struck him in the left arm, and a buck-shot in the right breast, penetrating the lungs. Another shot also struck another man on the head, fortunately, however, merely cutting the skin. There is but little hopes of Private N.'s recovery, Our able and worthy Surgeons, Drs. Dilly and Dennis, were promptly present, and did all in their power to alleviate the sufferings of the unfortunate man.

Robbery at the Exchange Hotel.

--Mr. Weith's room, at the Exchange, was entered through the window on Monday night last and robbed of about eleven hundred and seventy-nine dollars in money. Being mostly notes on Southern banks, they were easily identified, and yesterday a man named William Preston Knuckles was arrested while engaged in trying to exchange them at a broker's office. The thief, in leaving the room, passed out as he came in, and left the window hoisted after him. He will be examined before the Mayor this morning.

The Daily Dispatch: Thurs, December 28, 1865

The robbery at the Ballard House.

--William P. Knuckles →, charged with entering the room of Mr. Weith, at the Ballard House, on Saturday night last, and stealing a gold watch and between seven and eight hundred dollars in money, was arraigned before the Mayor yesterday for examination. The prisoner was attended by A. Judson Crane and Samuel T. Bayley, Esqs., as counsel.

Mr. Weith stated that on the night of the robbery he had retired to bed, having first locked his door, when some one entered his room. About 2 o'clock A. M. he was awakened by the cold air blowing through his window, which he then noticed was hoisted. He then examined his clothing, and found that his pockets had been robbed of between seven and eight hundred dollars in bank notes and a very fine double-case gold watch and chain. He at once repaired to the police station and lodged information of the robbery. On Monday he put the brokers on the look-out, and as the notes were of denominations on banks in Louisiana and Alabama, which could be easily identified, he furnished a description of them. It was his custom to take a list of his notes every night. The next morning, on going to the banking-house of Messrs. William B. Isaacs & Co., Mr. Taylor was in the act of examining some Louisiana notes offered for sale by the prisoner, which, on being shown to him, he identified one of the notes as one that had been stolen from him. The prisoner was detained while he could go for an officer. He afterwards left the house, and was pursued down Main street to Seventeenth, with great cries of "catch the thief"; and as he was crossing the canal bridge he was stopped by two men and taken into custody.

Mr. Taylor testified that on Tuesday morning, on his arrival at his place of business, (Messrs. Isaacs & Co.'s,) he heard of the robbery of Mr. Weith. Soon after this, the prisoner came in and offered for sale some money of a description like that lost by Mr. Weith. --While examining them, Mr. Weith came in, and he quietly handed him the notes, one of which he readily identified. As soon as Mr. Weith satisfied himself that the money was his, he went in search of an officer, and while he was absent, ← Knuckles →, the accused, seemed very impatient, repeatedly telling witness to hurry up, as he wanted to go away. Witness delayed him for some moments, keeping his eye upon him. The prisoner finally started towards the door, when he met Mr. Weith, and the two exchanged a few words, after which the prisoner started to run, and was followed down the street by Mr. Weith.

Dr. Shepherd, of the firm of Shepherd & Cohen, was notified of the robbery on Tuesday morning; and shortly afterwards, while sitting in his office, he heard the cry of "stop thief," and going to the door, saw the accused pursued by Weith, and he was afterwards arrested. When Mr. Weith reported the robbery at his office, he described as among the notes one very similar to that which was afterwards offered for sale at the banking-house of Messrs. Isaacs & Co., and which Mr. Weith claimed as his own.

A witness testified that he sold to Mr. Weith the five dollar note which was here identified. He had no doubt that the note here exhibited was the same one.

The testimony for the Commonwealth having been concluded, Mr. Crane, for the defence, said that he did not propose to deny that the money offered for sale by ← Knuckles → at the banking-house of Isaacs & Co. was the property of Mr. Weith; but he had testimony to offer in regard to the manner in which it came into his possession, and also as to his whereabouts on the night of the robbery. The following testimony was then given for the defence:

Mrs. Goodwin, a female of large proportions, stated that she kept a bar-room in Baker's alley, and that ← Knuckles → boarded with her. On the night when the robbery was committed she could swear that he was in the

Definitions of Early Immigrant Groups

The following list will help introduce beginning researchers and others to groups of people who came to the New World in the very early years of settlement.

Hessians — German troops used by the British in the Revolutionary War, many of whom deserted and remained in America. Most were from Hesse, Germany Huguenots — French Protestants who fled from persecution, mainly from 1685 onward. They first went to Prussia, the German Palatinate, Holland, England and then came to America. Those in the French West Indies escaped to the southern coast of America.

Mennonites — A Swiss Protestant group. Founded in 1525, who migrated to America by way of Alsace, England, and Russia. They settled mainly in Ohio, Kansas, Pennsylvania and Minnesota.

Moravians — The United Brethren is a Protestant group formed in Bohemia about 1415 and spread to Poland, Prussia, Germany and England.

Palatines — in 1699, Louis XIV of France began persecuting German Protestants on the banks of the Rhine River, Queen Anne of England helped a group to come to America in 1708. More than 2,000 arrived in New York in 1710 and settled along the Hudson and Mohawk Rivers. Many went to Ireland.

Quakers — The Society of Friends was formed in England in 1648. Early restrictions brought them to New Jersey in 1675 and some 230 English Quakers founded Burlington, New Jersey in 1678. 1681 was the year William Penn was granted the territory of Pennsylvania, and within two years there were 3,000 Quakers there.

Scots-Irish — British rules placed the Descendants of the Pennsylvania Scots in northern counties of Ireland in the early part of the 17th century. Most came to America from 1718 until the Revolution. They settled in Pennsylvania first then moved south and then westward with the frontier.

Walloons — From southern Belgium, the language of the Walloons is a~ French dialect. Cornelius May of Flanders, Holland and about 30 to 40 families came to America in 1624 and established Fort Orange. It is now known as Albany, NY.

house all night; that he went to bed about half-past 8 o'clock, and did not get up until after 9 o'clock the next morning. He could not have passed out of the house without waking her up, nor could he have gone out the rear way, on account of a terrible dog, which it would have been dangerous to encounter.

James Smith, a youth, testified that, on Monday morning, about 9 o'clock, he was in Ferguson's barber shop, when Knuckles came in. Knew him slightly and spoke to him. Shortly afterwards, while ← Knuckles → was getting his hair dressed, a stranger came in and asked ← Knuckles → if he could take some State money and have it changed for him. With this money was a five-dollar note. ← Knuckles → took the money, saying he would try and sell it for him. The man who came in with the money passed out of the shop. They did not seem to be well acquainted with each other.

Arthur W. Ferguson, a young man of mixed blood, son of Ferguson the barber, and employed in the shop, testified to nearly the same facts as Smith. While he was engaged in shaving ← Knuckles →, a man, whose name he did not know, came in, and accosting ← Knuckles → familiarly as "Pres, " asked him if he could not sell some money for him. ← Knuckles → did not seem to recognize him, but afterwards entered into conversation with him, and took the money to sell. Witness farther stated that the man who brought in the money had been in his shop two or three times since. He thought he was engaged in some sort of business here, but could not tell his name.

This closed the evidence for the defence, and the Mayor then asked the prisoner's counsel if they had any remarks to make. They replied that they were willing to rest the case upon the evidence, and had no argument to offer here.

The Mayor decided to remand the accused for further examination before the Hustings Court, in January next, on a charge of felony.

Mr. Crane then made an appeal to his Honor to bail the prisoner. He knew it was not aailable case, but he made the application on the score of humanity, as the father of the prisoner was then lying at the point of death.

The Mayor, on this ground solely, admitted ← Knuckles to bail in the sum of five hundred dollars for his appearance, which he readily gave, and left the court-room in company with his friends. The witnesses were also recognized to appear.
